An effort may be made to get the city to deed a portion of this ground for the safe works.

There is, however, a decided objection to locating any factory at the mouths of the canyons, on account of these being the ventilators of the city. There would be as much sense in using a chimney as the fresh air ventilator of a house with the draught downwards. Those who are conversant with the air currents say that during the heat of the day the currents from the canyons are very perceptible and if a factory were located there the smoke would be blown over the entire city.

"Smoke never crosses a river," said if the factories is west of the Jordan. The current of the water carries the smoke with it. This is an item of great importance and should be heated if Sait Lake is to become much of a manufacturing town. Factories that blacken the city with smoke can be as much a detriment as they are an advantage, for Salt Lake has as much to expect from the increase she will receive from persons who will select it as their residence on should always to considered.

The west siders have pooled their issues and have set their drag net for the safe works.

One of that class comes to my house from, say San Francisco. He runs up a bill of $50 and departs, leaving only a trunk, containing nothing of value.
